Oxford has just announced two four-year postdoctoral positions in Qur'anic Studies. They will form part of a research project entitled "Qur'anic Commentary: An Integrative Paradigm" that is funded by the European Research Council. They are looking for two scholars who will produce monographs on the Islamic reception history of surahs 1–4 and on Qur'anic law in its late antique context. More details can be found at the links below.
