

FELLOWSHIPS: Heidelberg Research Laboratory for the Ancient Near East

We would like to draw your attention to our new programme, the Heidelberg Research Laboratory for the Ancient Near East, for which we invite applications until a deadline of 7.12.2018. The programme is organised by the Institute for Assyriology at the University of Heidelberg

Within the Heidelberg Research Laboratory for the Ancient Near East, ten young Assyriologists study a selected corpus of unpublished cuneiform texts together with renowned researchers. A joint publication ensues from this intensive collaboration. In this way, the programme offers motivated young academics the unique opportunity to explore unidentified textual material together with leading Assyriologists. The close personal supervision, daily exchange, and work setting characterised by high levels of motivation and commitment together foster a truly exceptional research and teaching environment.

The 1st Heidelberg Research Laboratory for the Ancient Near East will take place from 16.6. to 26.7.2019 in Heidelberg. For the duration of the course, participants will be provided with accommodation in the university guesthouse. In addition, we will reimburse travel expenses to and from Heidelberg.

The Heidelberg Research Laboratory for the Ancient Near East is aimed at motivated and committed young academics who have successfully started to explore the breadth of the field of Ancient Near Eastern Studies. The programme's primary target groups are doctoral students and recent postdocs. This notwithstanding, talented students about to complete a Master's degree are also welcome to apply. Applications are open until 7.12.2018.

For further information, please consult our homepage
<https://www.ori.uni-heidelberg.de/assyriologie/forschungslabor/index_en.html> or contact us via email: <forschungslabor@ori.uni-heidelberg.de>.