DEADLINE: APRIL 1, 2017

Applicants are encouraged to apply for the Archaeological Institute of America (AIA) 2017 Elizabeth Bartman Museum Internship. The scholarship is intended to help graduate students, or those who have recently completed a master's degree, in Archaeology or a related field (Anthropology, Art History, Classics, History, etc.) meet expenses associated with undertaking a museum internship either in the United States or abroad.

Applicants must be members of the AIA. For more information and to apply, visit archaeological.org/grants/16811.

2016 Bartman Internship Awardee Yiğit Z. Helvacı Helvacı interned at the Museum of Byzantine Civilizations, Thessaloniki, Greece, where he created digital 3D models of the museum's collection using photogrammetry. These were the first of their kind at a museum in Greece. The models are changing the way the fields of archaeology, conservation, and cultural heritage examine artifacts and have made efficient data sharing easier than ever before. Helvacı said, "Thanks to the AIA and the Bartman Internship, I have been able to self-design and execute a cultural heritage project from scratch and gain a tremendous amount of knowledge and experience in photogrammetry. This technique will be an integral part of my analytical methodology during my Ph.D.-level studies that will focus on the material and execution technique characteristic in Byzantine wall paintings". All of Helvacı's models are available on the museum website for public viewing.
