

FELLOWSHIPS: Heritage Destruction in Iraq and Syria

I am pleased to announce a fully funded PhD Scholarship to work on a specific thesis attached to the project, 'Heritage Destruction in Iraq and Syria'.

This is an exciting opportunity for a PhD candidate to work on a major project documenting and analysing heritage destruction in the Middle East, with a specific focus on the destruction wrought by the 'Islamic State'. The project involves several key stakeholders, including government departments, and the opportunity to have a real impact on cultural property protection policy.

The scholarship is open to both domestic and international candidates, although the candidate would need to be based in Melbourne for the bulk of the study period. Applications close on the 30th April.

Can you please promote via your networks or to anyone you think might be interested.

Please note: The ability to read/speak Arabic, although helpful, is not an essential eligibility criteria (as incorrectly listed on the job advertisement).

Brief details on the broader project are available here:

<http://www.deakin.edu.au/alfred-deakin-institute/research/projects/partnerships/destruction-heritage-iraq-syria>

The advertisement for the scholarship can be seen here:

http://www.seek.com.au/Job/30700081?_ga=1.2671225.830640866.1429151308