University College London - UCL Institute of Archaeology

Location: London

Salary: £37,152 to £48,873 Per annum, inclusive of London Allowance

Hours: Full Time

Contract Type: Permanent

Placed on: 26th February 2015

Closes: 27th March 2015

Job Ref:1452839

The UCL Institute of Archaeology is recognised as one of the leading academic departments of archaeology not just in the UK but globally. We are seeking to appoint a research-active Lecturer to contribute to research and teaching in the archaeology of the Mediterranean.

The successful candidate will bring their own area of expertise to the Institute, and have a vision for cross-regional, comparative and interdisciplinary approaches to the field; they will also have the ambition to research broader questions of their own area of expertise. The post-holder will be expected to undertake research of the highest quality within their own specialism contributing to the research standing and culture of the Institute.

The post-holder will teach at all levels, from undergraduate and postgraduate to research degree level in their own area of expertise and will contribute to the teaching at all levels beyond their area of expertise.

The successful candidate will have a PhD in Mediterranean Archaeology or a closely related discipline. They will have regional expertise in the archaeology of the Mediterranean, Neolithic to Late Antique, that complements and diversifies existing coverage either in time period or regional focus or both.

Teaching experience at undergraduate and postgraduate is essential along with experience as a researcher in Mediterranean archaeology. Appointment at Grade 8 is dependant on experience and outstanding research, publication and teaching achievements.
