

The University of St Andrews invites applications for a Lecturer (equivalent to an “assistant professor”) in Hebrew Bible/Old Testament within the School of Divinity. Candidates must demonstrate a growing international research reputation in Hebrew Bible/Old Testament and commitment to delivering high quality teaching within the broad field of Biblical Studies. The successful candidate will be expected to have a range of interests that strengthen or complement those in the School, to be active in research publication, and to be capable of teaching the subject to undergraduate and taught postgraduate students from a wide range of backgrounds.

Candidates must hold a PhD in a relevant discipline. Excellent teaching skills and an interest in promoting knowledge exchange are essential. Candidates must also have some familiarity with grant seeking processes in relation to research councils and other sources. Applications are particularly welcome from women who are under-represented in Arts posts at the University.

Salary: £39,992 - £49,149 per annum

Start Date: 3 January 2017 or as soon as possible thereafter

Informal enquiries can be directed to Steve Holmes, Head of School (divhos@st-andrews.ac.uk) or Judith Wolfe, Deputy Head of School (jw240@st-andrews.ac.uk).